ABOUT INTERNATIONAL PHOTOGRAPHY AWARDS™

The International Photography Awards (IPA) conducts an annual competition for professional, amateur, and student photographers on a global scale, creating one of the most ambitious and comprehensive competitions in the photography world today.

The IPA contest is a sister-effort of the Lucie Foundation, a 501 (c) 3 non-profit, charitable foundation whose mission is to honor master photographers, discover and cultivate emerging talent and promote the appreciation of photography worldwide. The annual programming of Lucie Foundation is funded largely though the International Photography Awards, including the signature event, the Lucie Awards.

We aim to salute the achievements of the world's finest photographers, to discover new and emerging talents, and to promote the appreciation of photography.

BEST OF SHOW SELECTION

Each year, the IPA invites a guest curator to select 40 to 50 images from both the professional and non-professional pools of first, second, and third place winners to be exhibited in an exclusive "Best of Show" exhibition that opens in New York during the week leading up to the Lucie Awards Gala. The Best of Show exhibition then travels to various countries to be included in photo festivals, galleries, and other photography related events throughout the following year.

LARRY FINK ACHIEVEMENT IN DOCUMENTARY

Besides working as a professional photographer for over fifty-five years, Larry Fink has had one-man shows at New York's Museum of Modern Art, and the Whitney Museum of Modern Art amongst others. On the European continent, he has had one-man shows at the Musee de l'Elysee in Lausanne, Switzerland and the Musee de la Photographie in Charleroi, Belgium. Recently, in the last three years, he had a traveling retrospective shown in six different Spanish museums. He was awarded the "Best of Show" for an exhibition curated by Christian Caujolle at the Arles Festival of Photograph in France. As far as being represented in group shows, the list is longer than the eye can see.

Most recently, Larry has been awarded the 2015 International Center for Photography (ICP) Infinity Award for Lifetime Fine Art Photography. He has also been awarded two John Simon Guggenheim Fellowships and two National Endowment for the Arts, Individual Photography Fellowships. He has been teaching for over fifty-two years, with professorial positions held at Yale University, Cooper Union, and lastly at Bard College, where he is an honored professor.

Larry's first monograph, the seminal Social Graces (Aperture, 1984) left a lasting impression in the photographic community. There have been twelve other monographs with the subject matter crossing the class barrier in unexpected ways. Two of his most recently published books were on several "Best Of" lists of the year: The Beats published by Artiere /powerhouse and Larry Fink on Composition and Improvisation published by Aperture. As an editorial photographer, The New Yorker and Vanity Fair have been amongst a long list of accounts.

Currently, Larry's work from The Beats and The Vanities is on display at Giorgio Armani's beautiful Armani/Silos space in Milan, Italy.

Fink On Warhol: New York Photographs of the 1960s, Larry's newest monograph was released Spring 2017 featuring rare photographs of Andy Warhol and his friends at the Factory interspersed with street scenes and the political atmosphere of 1960s New York.

Additionally, he is currently working on a massive retrospective book to be published by the University of Texas Press. Grafiche dell'Artiere in Bologna will make the exquisite prints for the book.

DOMINIQUE ISSERMANN

ACHIEVEMENT IN FASHION

Dominique Issermann was born in Paris in 1947 and began taking photographs and printing at the age of 16.

She majored in Literature at La Sorbonne and at the rupture of the french revolution in May 68 she moved to Rome with the young student leader named Daniel Cohn-Bendit and famed filmmaker Jean-Luc Godard to work on films. During these five years in Rome she co-directed two films with avant-garde Director Marc'O, Tamaout and Elettra.

Upon her return to Paris in 1973 , she produced a series of photo essays for Zoom magazine on the movie sets of Fellini's Casanova and Bertolucci's Novecento. She discovered fashion photography after winning first prize at a photography contest. With the exception of a commission from Time Magazine to cover the Portuguese Revolution, the body of her work has focused on portraits.

She photographed the up and coming generation of actresses and actors such as Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu, Isabelle Adjani, Fanny Ardant among others. She perfected her delicate signature black and white style and slowly became a prominent figure in her field.

In 1979, Sonia Rykiel hired Dominique Issermann to collaborate with her on advertising campaigns, spurring a relationship that spanned a period of more than 10 years. She began contributing to international fashion magazines such as American Vogue and its international editions, Elle, The NYT Magazine and many other renowned titles.

Amongst her most famous images: portraits of Marguerite Duras, Balthus, Simone Signoret, Jeanne Moreau, Serge Gainsbourg, Isabelle Huppert, Monica Belluci, Keira Knightley and all the iconic models of the time: Christy Turlington, Eva Herzigova, Isabella Rossellini, Carla Bruni, Laetitia Casta, Gisèle Bündchen...

Her work continues to flow naturally between portraiture, fashion and advertising blurring the divide between them. She has created iconic advertising campaigns for major brands worldwide, including several decades-long collaborations with Chanel, as well as ads for Christian Dior, Lancôme, Nina Ricci, Yves Saint Laurent and Hermès.

Along the way she also applies her distinctive style onto moving images for which she still has a prominent taste, directing several music videos for Leonard Cohen, notably Dance me & Manhattan – and shooting TV commercials for many of her clients, including the memorable Eau Sauvage and Dune for Christian Dior and the Victoria's Secret legendary commercial featuring Bob Dylan. Her recent music collaborations also include work with Nick Cave.

Dominique has published several books – one of which Laetitia Casta achieves considerable success – and exhibits her work around the world with major retrospectives at the Rencontres Internationales de Arles and at the Paris Maison Européenne de la Photo, and recently at Paris's Charles de Gaulle airport where 80 of her most famous pictures were exhibited on 400 digital advertising panels throughout all terminals.

Her unique style has been praised by many, Dominique Issermann invents, in the black studio, a white light that seems to glow from under the skin of the characters and that the schools of photography teach under the name of Light Issermann.

Amongst the many accolades she has received for her work, Dominique Issermann is the first woman to receive the equivalent of an Oscar for her fashion photography at the 1987 French Fashion Awards. In January 2007, she was promoted to the rank of Officer of France's Order of Arts and Letters and in March 2012, she was named to the National Order of Merit.

ABELARDO MORREL

ACHIEVEMENT IN FINE ART

Abelardo Morell was born in Havana, Cuba in 1948. He immigrated to the United States with his parents in 1962. Morell received his undergraduate degree from Bowdoin College and his MFA from The Yale University School of Art. He has received an honorary degree from Bowdoin College in 1997 and from Lesley University in 2014.

His publications include a photographic illustration of Alice's Adventures in Wonderland (1998) by Dutton Children's Books, A Camera in a Room (1995) by Smithsonian Press, A Book of Books (2002) and Camera Obscura (2004) by Bulfinch Press and Abelardo Morell (2005), published by Phaidon Press. The Universe Next Door (2013), published by The Art Institute of Chicago. His newest body of work Flowers for Lisa will be published by Abrams in Fall 2018.

He has received a number of awards and grants, which include a Guggenheim fellowship in 1994 and an Infinity Award in Art from ICP in 2011.

His work has been collected and shown in many galleries, institutions and museums, including the Museum of Modern Art, The Whitney Museum of American Art, the Metropolitan Art Museum in New York, The Chicago Art Institute, The San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, The Houston Museum of Art, The Boston Museum of Fine Art, The Victoria & Albert Museum and over seventy other museums in the United States and abroad. A retrospective of his work organized jointly by the Art Institute of Chicago, The Getty in Los Angeles and The High Museum in Atlanta closed in May 2014 after a year of travel. In October 2014, Abelardo had his first show at Edwynn Houk Gallery in New York featuring a selection of new pictures. In 2016, Abelardo also had a show at Beetles + Huxley Gallery, London titled "Abelardo Morell: Through the Looking Glass".

JUDITH JOY ROSS

ACHIEVEMENT IN PORTRAITURE

Since 1982, the photographer Judith Joy Ross (born 1946 in Hazleton, Pennsylvania) has produced sensitive, authentic portraits of people at the heart of society: school children, and teachers, adolescents, protestors, soldiers, visitors to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, Washington, D.C. and members of the U.S. Congress. Her portraits which are primarily contextualized in series, offer an aesthetic as well a psychologically empathic approach to photography. Ross's elaborate, traditional way of working with a large format 8x10 camera and tripod gives her time to engage with the person she is about to photograph. So the act of photographing itself becomes an intense encounter between photographer and subject, an expression of attention for and appreciation of the person depicted. Thanks to the shallow depth of field, the photographs lift the people from the background, balancing visual intimacy and respectful distance.

Ross uses the documentary style whose immediacy and transparency convey a regard for reality and the medium and which gives room to an awareness of civic responsibility and a keen interest in peoples emotional states.

Ross has been awarded grants from the John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation (1985), a City of Easton/Pennsylvania Council on the Arts Grant (1988), the Charles Pratt Memorial Award (1992), and the Andrea Frank Foundation Award (1998).

Monographs and exhibition catalogs of her work have been published internationally. Her photographs are included in numerous institutional collections including those of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Museum of Modern Art, New York (where she was selected by John Szarkowski to be in the first exhibition in the influential New Photography series), San Francisco Museum of Modern Art, Addison Gallery of American Art, Allentown Art Museum, Allentown, Pennsylvania, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, Museum of Fine Arts, Houston, Museum Folkwang, Essen, Museum Ludwig, Cologne, Foundation A Stichting, Brussels, National Gallery of Canada, Ottawa, Die Photographische Sammlung, Cologne, The Pirla Foundation Collection, San Francisco, Victoria and Albert Museum, London; and Yale University Art Gallery, New Haven, among others.

In 2011, Die Photographische Sammlung in Cologne organized a retrospective exhibition of Ross's work which traveled to the Kunstmuseum Kloster in Madeburg and the Foundation A Stichting, Brussels.

STEVE SCHAPIRO

ACHIEVEMENT IN PHOTOJOURNALISM

Steve Schapiro was born in New York in 1934. His interest in photography started as a teenager when he began capturing people in human situations. At that time, he felt the most a young photographer could aspire to was to work for Life Magazine.

In 1961 Schapiro studied with W. Eugene Smith at his loft in New York. Besides black and white printing, Smith gave Steve a very strong sense of humanitarian values, as did Dorothea Lange.

After that, Steve set about to do his own self-projects. He went to Arkansas and spent time photographing at a migrant worker's camp. Jubilee, a small Catholic magazine, published his photos as an eight-page picture story. The New York Times picked up one of the photos and used it as the cover for the New York Times Magazine section. That was his first real break.

Schapiro continued showing his pictures to Life while doing essays on "Narcotic Addiction in East Harlem", "The Apollo Theatre", "Women of New York", and "Jazz Sessions for Riverside Records".

Finally Life gave him an assignment which worked out and he began freelancing for Life and other magazines such as Time, Newsweek, Sports Illustrated and Paris Match.

In late 1962, he read James Baldwin's essay in the New Yorker which became part of the book The Fire Next Time. Schapiro asked Life if he could do a photo essay on Baldwin. They agreed and the next month Steve started traveling with Baldwin to Harlem, North Carolina, Mississippi, and New Orleans. He met many leaders of the non-violent Civil Rights Movement and saw real segregation for the first time. Schapiro's friendship with Baldwin and his relationship with New York magazines gave him access to some critical events in the Civil Rights Movement.

Steve went on to travel with Robert Kennedy on his presidential campaign and did Kennedy's campaign posters. He did a long series of photos with Andy Warhol and well-known portraits of Magritte, Samuel Beckett and David Bowie. Sports Illustrated had him spend time with Muhammad Ali, (then Cassius Clay), in his hometown of Louisville. He also did the images for an award-winning documentary on the Oglala Sioux Indians in South Dakota. When Life and Look magazines folded, Steve went to Hollywood and worked on films such as The Godfather, Taxi Driver and Chinatown.

Schapiro has continued to focus on diverse subjects. One of his most recent projects was Bliss which was published in 2015 and is a study in the changes of the hippie movement from a heavy drug culture to one of meditation, organic raw food, and ecstatic dancing.

Recently, he has focused on Misericordia, a 31-acre campus in North Chicago for people with developmental disabilities. Misericordia is a joyous place where the 600 residents start early in the morning doing work projects, arts, yoga, dancing, and work on computers. Their lives have virtually turned around and their unique personalities flourish.

His latest interest now is in doing a book on Chicago's South Side and a charismatic leader there, Father Michael Pfleger.

Schapiro's work is represented in many private and public collections, including the Smithsonian Museum, the High Museum of Art, the New York Metropolitan Museum and the Getty Museum. He has recently been awarded The James Joyce Award and Fellowship from the University College Dublin. Previous recipients include Jesse Jackson and Archbishop Desmond Tutu among many other distinguished activists and world leaders.

ART SHAY

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT

"Art Shay's photography shakes you up, sets you down gently, pats you on the head and then kicks you in the ass." Roger Ebert

Art Shay was born in the Bronx, New York, in 1922. During World War II, he was lead navigator on 30 missions in the Eighth Air Force. His service, which also includes 23 combat supplies missions, earned him five Air Medals, the Distinguished Flying Cross and the French Croix de Guerre. He is credited with shooting down one Focke Wulf 190, a German fighter plane.

Shay has pursued photography since his teens, and he took his first Leica to war with him. His first published photographs - documenting a mid air collision over his English Air Base - were printed in a September 1944 issue of Look magazine. Upon returning to civilian life, Shay wrote Sunday features for the Washington Post before becoming a staff reporter for Life magazine. In San Francisco at age 26, he became Life's youngest bureau chief. His specialty was story ideas and he wrote text and captions for photographers such as Alfred Eisenstaedt, Peter Stackpole, Wallace Kirkland and Francis Miller.

Shay moved to Chicago in late 1948. A longtime fan of literature, he befriended novelist Nelson Algren, the winner of the first National Book Award for Fiction. Throughout the 1950s, they wandered Chicago documenting Algren's "rusty heart" neighborhoods. In 1951, Shay left his staff position at Life magazine and became a freelance photographer. He found success shooting for major magazines including Life, Time, Fortune, Ebony, Sports Illustrated, The Saturday Evening Post and The New York Times Magazine. Shay earned a reputation for getting the shots editors wanted. As former editor of Life and Fortune Roy Rowan put it, "Art Shay's extraordinary talent lies in capturing the human spirit of all those who come before his lens."

Shay's images range from photographs of nine US Presidents, to the early 1960s Post cereal box baseball card photographs, to a forty-year ongoing essay of a local shopping mall. He is the author of nearly 70 books, including several dozen nonfiction children's books. He has also written five plays, two of which had professional stage runs: "A Clock for Nikita" in 1963 and "Where have you gone, Jimmy Stewart?" in 2002. Shay is also a member of the U.S. Racquetball Hall of Fame (having been a state and national champion) and has been the official photographer of the racquetball association.

Since 1958, Shay has lived in Deerfield, Illinois, where he and his wife Florence raised their five children. Florence Shay, an esteemed rare book dealer and his wife of 67 years, died in 2012. Art has since published "My Florence: A 70-year Love Story" which honors her as his intellectual and loving partner.

Shay's photographs reside in major permanent collections including the Art Institute of Chicago, the Museum of Contemporary Art - Chicago and the National Portrait Gallery (Washington D.C.). He is currently involved in several photographic and literary projects including an expansive book of his civil rights photographs and a documentary on his life and work.
